more or less interesting, and the excite-ment, which to a certain extent cuimin ated yesterday week, has only slightly abated. The tendency of the market has not been marked, but has been slightly in faver of buyers, although at times there have been indications of considerable strength displayed by holders. That there should be a good fight for posses-sion of the market by both bulls and bears is only natural under the prevailing influences of the situation. Statistically there is not much change. However, what change there is, it must be admitted is in favor of the bears. In the first place the deliveries from warehouses are small and the receipts at shipping port have shown considerable increase. Thos at Rio are still behind those of last year but it is stated that they will be in creased from this forward. Whether thi assumption is well founded remains to be seen. At Santos there is a differentiale to be told, the receipts there being in excess of last year, aggregating up to date 412,000 bags, against 571,000 bags for the same date last year.
